Academy gets funding for co-ordinator

The Academy's Gretchen Gould (co-ordinator), Anne Griffiths and Rhys Taylor (Morris dancing), Margaret van Ginkel (Playing for Pleasure), Christopher Musgrave (Shine Choir), Paula Flannery (yoga), Fritz Logan (The Point is the Thing; acting and writing), Jill Roberts (Academy co-founder), and Cathy Allison (drama for adults). Photo: Jan Finlayson.

Launched in 2012, Geraldine Academy of Performance and Arts has been a hub of arts teaching and learning, in its old St Mary's hall home near the Talbot Street-State Highway 79 intersection.

Last year saw the development of a new business plan, and "Out of that came a successful application to the Mid and South Canterbury Trust for funding for a co-ordinator," says Keith Tyler-Smith, academy treasurer and management committee member.

"This is the new order. We're looking to increase the academy's scheduled activities, increase outreach, reduce costs, build sponsorship and funding, shape events and build our support base."

The co-ordinator will be central to achieving those aims. Gretchen Gould describes her new role: "I'll support the committee and help with the day-to-day running, and highlight the academy's uniqueness in the area. It's about creative learning that appeals to people of all ages and interests... and I'll be helping the academy become more self-sufficient."

Piano lessons; Italian; Highland, jazz, and Morris dancing; writing; acting; solo and group instrumental tuition and singing; and yoga are scheduled already, and the size and layout of the academy means there is plenty of space for the programme's planned growth.

Co-founder Jill Roberts ticks off the features attractive to tutors. "We have dance mirrors along one wall, a good kitchen, craft spaces, a music room, a sound system, tutor storage, effective heating, theatre lighting, a performance space, and an outdoor area."

And, as a charitable trust reliant on fundraising and run entirely by volunteers until Gretchen's appointment, flexibility and responsiveness to the art community's needs are essential.

Jill says, "The academy's a well-supported service to the community. We attract well-qualified tutors and create an interesting timetable, but we don't employ them; the tutors simply hire space."

The academy's also available for hire for meetings, craft groups, gatherings. The craft market and blackboard nights [informal public events for musicians and supporters] are fundraisers."

Fritz Logan and Margaret van Ginkel are among this year's new tutors, and both are highly experienced. Fritz was communications director for University of Maryland's Asia-Pacific region stationed in Tokyo and Margaret is a long-time itinerant music teacher.

The Point's the Thing, Fritz' writing and acting course, he says is, "A play on the Hamlet line 'The play's the thing...'. Each session, the play's already done; we'll spend 15-20 minutes acting at the beginning of each class, then have a fair bit of discussion – So what? How do you know? What do you mean? What does it look like? – and then we'll spend time editing."

Margaret's Playing for Pleasure course will be "student-driven," she says. An orchestra or a band, depending on the instruments students bring. "We'll play music the students want to play, with a showcase or concert at the end of each term. Performing is great fun."

Four Peaks Seido Karate Club - beginners' class

The Geraldine Four Peaks Seido Karate club is offering a beginners' class starting on Thursday 12 February at 6 pm at the Geraldine High School gymnasium on McKenzie Street.

The one-hour sessions will run for 18 weeks through to 18 June. The costs are $2 per person, per session, for adults and children from 6 years of age. Everyone is welcome to join in.

The physical training in Seido emphasises progressive development of strength, flexibility and aerobic capacity. Seido seeks to develop a 'non-quitting' spirit in each student.

"No matter what the obstacle or difficulty

– emotional, physical, financial – we want students to feel that, though they may be set back, they will never be overcome by any of these problems. The sincere practice of karate can impress this idea into a person's spirit," says Tadashi Nakamura, who founded Seido Karate in 1976.

Seido Karate was developed to offer individuals from all walks of life a way to strengthen their minds, bodies and spirits. At the same time, and integral to the training, students strive to give back to society what they have gained from their study of Seido Karate.

National Country Music Duo of the Year

The 2015 programme of Arts On Tour New Zealand (AOTNZ) opens with a flourish – featuring an award-winning duo. Into the East will perform in Ashburton and Fairlie this month.

Into the East’s Liv McBride and Graeme Woller were crowned 2014 National Country Music Duo of the Year and nominated for the 2014 Taite Music Prize as well as 2014 Best NZ Folk Album.

Featuring gently finger-picked guitar one minute, bouncing percussion the next, traversing between country and folk while detouring through alternative and soul, these spirited soulful Invercargill-based musicians are now taking on New Zealand.

“Think Fairport Convention taking Neil Young’s music apart and building something new with the bones of Sheryl Crow,” said Ania Glowacz in the NZ Musician.

“McBride is the voice that races ahead excited, Woller is the anchor; he pulls back just a tad – together they find the perfect place to pitch and rest each song,” said Simon Sweetman in The Dominion Post.

Into the East will perform in Ashburton and Fairlie in mid February. Photo: Supplied.

Hardings excel at Orienteering

Orienteering seems to literally run in the Harding family who has just returned from the Oceania Orienteering Championships in Tasmania, Australia.

The only disappointment for the Woodbury family was father Mike having to withdraw from the M55 (males up to 55 years old) with an ankle injury. Mike had gained selection for the New Zealand team, which in itself is quite an achievement.

Janet Harding also competed coming in a respectable fourth in her age group (which shall remain a secret). Janet says she is very happy with her result as she doesn’t compete particularly seriously, but husband Mike was ‘totally bummed out’ at having to come home early.

The three Harding boys did much better in their events and bought home a fistful of trophies to add to their collection. Fifteen year old, Stephen was part of a four man New Zealand secondary schools team which beat the Australian team quite convincingly on accumulated points. They competed in a relay event which they won and Stephen was third in the individual event, behind another kiwi and one Australian.

Thirteen year old, Tom was placed first overall in the M14 class where points are totaled from the best four of their five events. Tom’s best four were three firsts and one second placing.

The youngest Harding, 11 year old Matt rounded off the family’s trophy haul by being placed second overall in the M12 age group. Matt’s best four placings were one first and three seconds. He also gained a first in a separate relay event.

Tom and Matt reckon orienteering is a lot of fun and they enjoy getting together with the other competitors who are ‘pretty chilled people’. Their next family outing is the Tour De Peninsula on Waitangi weekend around several Christchurch and Banks Peninsula locations.

This is a photo of me in the schools challenge relay, running for New Zealand Junior Boys, we placed 1st in this event.

Stephen is very grateful for the sponsorship he received from ASPECT (Aoraki Sportsperson Charitable Trust)

Scurrying “a good starting point”

The South Canterbury Carriage and Harness Club (SCCHC) hosted a combined drive with Scurry NZ recently near Woodbury.

“We often run rides but this weekend we have had dressage, cone course as well as a marathon course for carriages through Conway’s Bush, Sundrum, Waihi Station and Bindi, and Steve Dakin’s property. This has given a range of obstacles and environments for the horses and carriages. We secured sponsors for the first time, which allowed us to offer prize money,” says Rosie Woods, president of the SCCHC.

“Scurrying is reasonably new to New Zealand with only one club in the South Island currently and we have about 40 members from children through to great-grandparents. Carriages have four wheels but in scurrying we have two or four wheels and one or a pair of ponies – these can include miniature, Dartmoor and Welsh, but also other ponies. These compete against the clock around cones, in dressage or both. Local members Cherie Stalker, Joanne Marama and Jill Stephenson competed at an international event in the UK during 2014. Cherie won a gold medal so that was a really positive result for a club only four years old,” says Joanne Marama.

Jill Stephenson says, “Scurrying is a good starting point for those new to driving buggies and carriages and they may also join the SCCHC, which has the additional cross-country element and includes horses as well as ponies.”

For more information on the SCCHC contact Rosie Woods 692 2991 or www.scurrynz.co.nz
Prizes were possible due to the generosity of six local businesses who supported the club with products and prize money (ITM, LJ Hooker, Lynn River, North End Motors, The Village Inn and Functional Wholefoods).

Entries invited for Easter Art Exhibition

New artists are invited to exhibit their work for the 2015 Easter Art Exhibition, held at Geraldine Primary School Community Hall from 1-5 April.

The focus of the exhibition is, as always, to give new and up-and-coming artists the opportunity to exhibit and sell their work. Around 20 new artists are introduced each year. Each day of the exhibition is different because as one artwork is sold another takes its place. A number of young artists have sold their first artworks at this exhibition and some have developed into gifted practitioners.

Local artist Hilary Thompson has exhibited at the last three Easter Art Exhibitions and sold her first painting there. “It’s brilliant. I’m just an amateur and it’s a bit daunting when you show your art to the public but to sell a painting was such a confidence booster.” Hilary describes the exhibition as, “a nice forum”.

The exhibition is becoming known further afield and last year it attracted entries from Tauranga and Invercargill. The annual exhibition was started in 2007 by then-local residents Kaye and John Jackson. John says, “The majority of new and up-and-coming artists cannot afford the expense to host their own exhibition to promote their work.” Kaye and John have since moved to Central Southland but continue to organise the exhibition each year.

Entry fees and commissions on artworks sold are donated to Geraldine Primary School. Last year the school was extremely grateful to receive around $5,000 from the exhibition. It funded a variety of projects such as kapa haka uniforms, reading books, classroom games, sports uniforms and the new playground extension.

New artists who wish to enter artworks in the 2015 exhibition should contact Kaye and John Jackson on gpeasterart@gmail.com or phone 03 202 5180 to request an entry form. All entries must be received before 13 March.

Rookie of the Year

Travel broker Brigitte Kempf was named the “Rookie of the Year” at the 2014 Travel Brokers New Zealand Awards. She was also named a top five Air New Zealand supporter and shared the Marketer of the Year award.

Mrs Kempf has been travelling each week to Geraldine to chat to clients about travel plans. When she started out with Travel Brokers 18 months ago she looked for a fresh way to help people plan and book their holidays.

Deciding to combine her love of coffee and travel, she set up regular Thursday meetings in Geraldine’s Café Plums. Also on her calendar were regular travel information evenings.

Brigitte offers six years of experience in the travel industry as well as a lifetime of travel. Recently she has been to Rarotonga, Hong Kong, Amsterdam, London, Thailand and China.

“I love the pleasure that comes from seeing others enjoy the fun and adventure of travel and create their own travel memories.”

“The awards were a pleasant surprise” says Brigitte. “It’s nice to be rewarded for my hard work.”

Time to move on

IN GOOD TASTE: 101 ways with zucchini

Daphne Bruce has retired after 22 years of employment with Barkers Geraldine. Though sad to say goodbye to fellow workers, Daphne says she is “more than ready for some down time”, and plans to travel and spend quality time with family and friends. She feels privileged to have spent so much time working amongst such a great team.
Jordyn Te Rahui-Hobbs

SJ Perelman once remarked: “...zucchini never fail to reach maturity. You can spray them with acid, beat them with sticks and burn them; they love it”. Luckily, zucchini recipes are almost as prolific as the never-ending crop. This vegetable is tirelessly adaptable and can be written about, eaten and enjoyed to eternity.

Frying lightly battered zucchini flowers does require some technique, but once you’ve got it right, your skill will be revered by anyone lucky enough to try these delicious morsels. The oil needs to be hot enough to crisp them immediately, but not so hot as to burn them. What you want is a salty, crisp batter that shatters when you cut into it. The flowers can be stuffed with a teaspoon of ricotta or goat cheese flavoured with a little lemon zest, but this is not necessary. Some suggest you should only fry the female flowers; personally I find either tastes great. The male flower is on a long stalk (which acts like a handle when dipping them in batter) attached to the stem of the plant. The female stem is short and attached to the zucchini itself. Just remove the pistil (only found in the male flower), as this can taste bitter.

To make a batter, sift some plain flour into a bowl. Season well with sea salt and ground pepper. Add enough sparkling water to give the batter a runny, cream-like consistency. When the oil is hot (test with a small piece of bread), dip each flower in it and place straight in the oil. Do not overcrowd the pan. Fry 3-4 minutes, turning, until crisp and golden brown. Remove with a slotted spoon to some paper towels. Serve and eat immediately with a lemon wedge and a light sprinkle of salt.

I’ll never forget the first time my dad fried slices of zucchini in some butter in a pan. Apart from omelettes (and now scones), these were his forte. The difference between plain old steamed zucchini and these golden-brown slices is worlds apart.

And what better way to get the kids to eat their greens than by adding them to a chocolate cake. Ingenious!

Chocolate zucchini cake

- 125g butter
- 1 cup of brown sugar
- 3 eggs
- 1 teaspoon of vanilla
- ½ cup of plain yoghurt
- 2½ cups of flour
- 2 teaspoons of baking soda
- ¼ cup of cocoa
- 1 teaspoon of cinnamon
- 1 teaspoon of baking powder
- 1 teaspoon of salt
- 3 cups of grated zucchini

Sweet and sour zucchini. Photo: Fiona Feasey.

Line a cake tin with baking paper. Heat the oven to 170°C. Cream the butter with the sugar and the vanilla until light and fluffy. Add the eggs one at a time, along with one tablespoon of the flour. Sift in the dry ingredients and fold in with the yoghurt and zucchini. Turn into the tin and bake for about 45 minutes. Ice with chocolate frosting.

The combination of sweet and sour is very Italian and rather refreshing on the palate. Verjuice (unfermented juice from green grapes) is easy to come by these days and is great to keep in the fridge for deglazing the pan after frying fish, chicken or pork. It’s also used to plump up currants, as in this recipe by Maggie Beer, who made most of us aware of verjuice in the first place.

Sweet and sour zucchini

- 2 tablespoons of dried currants
- ¼ cup of verjuice
- 450g zucchini, cut into 2cm-thick rounds
- Sea salt and ground pepper
- ¼ cup of extra virgin olive oil
- 1 onion, finely chopped
- 2 cloves of garlic, finely chopped
- 2 tablespoons of toasted pine nuts
- 2 tablespoons of fresh mint

Place the currants and the verjuice in a small glass dish and set aside for 1 hour.

Place the zucchini rounds on a wire rack. Sprinkle with sea salt and grind over some black pepper. Set aside for 1 hour.

Once the hour is up, rinse the slices and dry really well using a clean tea towel.

Heat the oil in a large frying pan and when hot but not smoking, add the onion. Stir for 5 minutes until soft . Add the garlic and mix through. Now nestle the zucchini slices in amongst the onion and cook for 4 minutes until golden brown. Turn each slice over and pour in the verjuice and currants. Allow to bubble up for a moment and continue cooking until the liquid has reduced to a syrupy glaze (about another 4 minutes). Transfer the zucchini and any sauce to a serving platter and scatter with the pine nuts and mint leaves.
