Talbot Forest Experience at Festival

Previously stretching from the mountains to the sea, the old podocarp forests of South Canterbury provided a rich and diverse habitat for a range of birds, lizards and bats until fire and settlement reduced them significantly. Now only remnants such as Talbot and Peel Forests remain.

"Although gazetted as a conservation estate in 1879, logging was still allowed and so the large mātai, tōtara and kahikatea we see now would have been deemed unworthy of logging – for reasons we don't really know," explained Department of Conservation (DOC) ranger George Illes to a group of people during the Talbot Forest experience at the Future Living Festival.

"Any large forest has its own ecosystem and by removing large areas we are now seeing many of these trees on the fringes, under stress. The small size of the reserve has been recognised as having impacts on bird, bat and other forest creatures, so the Timaru District Council, DOC and the Talbot Forest Working Group are developing corridors to current exotic plantations and replanting with native flora as the exotic trees are milled. The Barker Street plantation area is an example of this and it's hoped that this will increase the amount of bird and other life in the area. There are some Californian sequoias in the forest itself which will remain as they are now specimen trees in their own right and reflect some of the nostalgia plantings of the settlers."

George showed the group examples of the settler-introduced stoats, weasels and ferrets, which are heavily preying on native wildlife. They, along with cats and introduced pigeons remain pests in Talbot Forest. An example of one of the two remaining native bat species was also shown, as Talbot Forest becomes an occasional host to a portion of the small remaining population of approximately 200.

Well-formed tracks such as the Mātai Track wend through the forest, and are suitable and permitted for walking or buggies. The Davis Street extension is a well-used, multi-purpose path leading down through exotic pine and fir plantations to the Riddell Street Reserve; past volcanic basalt outcrops from the Mount Horrible eruptions and sedimentary layers of clay and smooth stones, adding a geological element to the trip.

Geraldine Pharmacy changes ownership

Peter Lynds and Don Law have sold Geraldine Pharmacy but remain "locals". Photo: Jan Finlayson.

Don Law took over Geraldine Pharmacy in 1985, and Peter Lynds bought the nearby Mathiesons Pharmacy two years later and renamed it Four Peaks Pharmacy.

The businesses shared local pharmacy trade until they amalgamated in 1998. Now, "It's time to go," says Don. They've sold their business and have plans that will largely take them far from the pharmaceutical arena.

"What will be, will be – I got my PLB [personal locator beacon] this morning," says Peter. "I want to spend time in the mountains and with the grandchildren in Wanaka and Arrowtown. I'm ending my pharmacy career." With a peripatetic childhood "somewhere north of Cook Strait", however, he's keen to retain the roots he's put down locally. "I'll remain based in Geraldine for now; this is home."

Don intends to remain here also – "I'm very much a local" – with plans to "improve my golf and expand my interests." Unlike Peter, he's keeping his annual practising certificate and may occasionally be spotted working as a locum.

The benefits of combining expertise and resources 17 years ago paid off. When they were independent, Peter says, "We alternated Saturday mornings and had a sort-out on Mondays. We'd borrow each other's stuff..." It was unnecessarily complicated. As a single, co-owned business, "it's been great, for lifestyle, holidays, etcetera. You go on holiday knowing the business is being run by an owner, not a locum."

Winchester swap meet

Above: Richard Anstey and Nigel Sherratt of Geraldine discuss the finer points of floriculture with Pleasant Valley Daffodils staff member Sylvia Lowen-Smith at the Winchester Swap Meet. "We come mostly for the car stuff, old stuff," says Richard. Sylvia says she is pleased with the number and range of people visiting the stall and the potential for good sales.

Jason Swaite of Christchurch takes his bike and bits stall to most regional meets. "You've got to go where the people are and there's lots of foot traffic at this one." Dunedin retailer Richard Harrington brings his range of die-cast toys every year. "This is a good meet. I'll go onto Fairlie and Oxford from here. The toys are still popular with all ages, whether for playing with or collecting – but you can't just sit in a shop and wait anymore."

Toy library garage sale

The recent fundraising garage sale held by the Geraldine Toy Library was deemed a success by committee members Amanda Taylor and Jatarna Brennan.

"With people pushing to get in as we opened, it meant that it was really packed – not only with the die-hard garage salers but also a lot of families. We had a number of supporters who had rented stall space so it gave customers a range of things to browse," says Amanda. "We consciously tied in with the Future Living Festival as both the library and garage sale demonstrate the reduce, recycle and re-use philosophy." Jatarna was pleased that so little was left at the end. As the toy buyer for the library, she is looking forward to applying the funds raised to the overhaul of the musical and baby toy stocks.

PHARMACY

Amalgamation allowed thoughtful development and the ability to supply most local pharmacy needs. Peter explains: "We increased the size of the premises and did a complete refit. We thought the expansion was too big, but the architect knew more about that than we did; the retail was growing, as were the demographics of Geraldine. It's great we had the room to expand."

The two naturally-lit frontages, warmly-coloured skylighting and the slow curve of the shop space are attractive to shoppers as well as providing a comfortable workplace. "To have international travellers coming in and going 'wow' is great," says Peter. And it's a good fit with "the whole vibrant thing of the Geraldine community – the retirees, the tourism, the agricultural sector."

Geraldine Pharmacy's new owner, Peter Shenoda, comes from Methven and has settled in Geraldine with his wife Joy.

More entrants in women's duathalon

Organisers of this year's Woodbury Women's Duathalon were delighted with the turnout on Saturday as over 200 entrants took part in this annual Woodbury School fundraiser.

Entries were up from 175 last year, showing the popularity of the event, which has an emphasis on completing rather than competing. There are no prizes for being first and the atmosphere is one of great support for all the ladies. Many entrants just wanted to better their time from last year and several mother/daughter combinations took part.

The duathalon competitors had to run/walk 3.5km to their bikes, cycle 12.5km and then run/walk 1.5km to the finish line in the Woodbury domain. Three new sections were added to this year's programme to cater for more ladies; 5km walk/run, 10km walk/run and 21km half-marathon.

At the start/finish line in the Woodbury Domain a great day was had by all with bouncy castles, food and drinks and spot prizes for the entrants. And the worst injury attended to by the St John's medic was one of the helpers who knicked her finger cutting up bread rolls.

Transition from school to senior rugby requires new era for club

A history spanning over 135 years is not always enough to guarantee a future and sometimes history really does threaten to repeat. An excerpt from a centennial dedication describes the 1919 Geraldine Club senior rugby team: "A game against Celtic... became their swan-song... and the junior players filling the gaps were too light for the sheer weight which overcame the science of the game." At that time, Geraldine withdrew from the senior competition and it was 13 years before Geraldine entered another team at the top level of club rugby.

Geraldine will have a senior team entered in the South Canterbury club rugby competition this year; however, the side is light on numbers and size, and threatens to follow the lead of their 1919 predecessors. But, while numbers are few, this is a young team big on ability. Led by first-five-eighth and South Canterbury representative, Jared Trevathan, the team also boasts the services of Ryan Neutze, who played his 100th cap for Geraldine in the opening match of the season against Temuka on Saturday. While Geraldine lost 14-53, there were learning outcomes for the team, including dynamic glimpses of speed and skill in open play that saw them run in two tries against their bigger and more experienced opponents.

Geraldine Rugby Club president Brian Bolt is excited about the local talent but concerned about the waning numbers. "This is a rebuilding year. The results on the paddock won't be as important as attitude and effort." He hopes the team will "play to their potential and enjoy the game".

But why the decline? This club enjoyed glory days as recently as 2009 when the development team won the South Canterbury competition with a try on full-time and the subsequent winning conversion after the final whistle. The Geraldine Rugby Club has a junior programme that continues to flourish, boasting more players each year.

However, the transition from school rugby to senior rugby has proven to be the breakdown. Bolt and club captain Chris Fisher have their own theories about this, including greater competition from other sports and work commitments. They are also concerned the populace may be struggling with their sense of community.

Fisher says, "I see rugby as a way people get recognition and engagement in their community. For young players, this is a way to be involved in their community."

As a committee, Bolt and Fisher are interested in fostering a positive environment for young people to grow in and support them on "the right path". To this end, they are looking to older and recently retired players to provide leadership, guidance and mentoring for young players.

Another issue includes the laws of club rugby in South Canterbury, which state a club must enter a senior team in the competition before entering a team in the development grade. Low numbers forced Geraldine to default their development team from the competition on Saturday. This gap between under-18 rugby and the senior grade has forced some young players to look elsewhere to achieve their rugby goals and the opportunity to play at a level suitable to their age, size and experience. Taine Young is one such player; the Tasman Rugby Union identified this South Canterbury representative and local school leaver as a rising star of the game, and he is now in the fortunate position to be playing and studying in Nelson where he will play in the under-21 grade.

In the meantime, coach Kieran Blogg is optimistic about the future of Geraldine's senior rugby and continues to work hard with his team. "We're starting off a new era and there are plenty of positives. We've got a good team coming through; it'll just take a while."

He also spoke of his "awesome group" of players, many of whom are homegrown, having come through the Geraldine High School and Geraldine Rugby Club ranks. Blogg acknowledges the recent loss of experience will be challenging but says, "We need to work hard for our club and our sponsors and make our past players proud."

NEWS IN BRIEF

Easter at St Andrew's Church

During Holy Week St Andrew's Church in Cox Street will have seven interactive displays set up around Jesus' journey to the cross. These are the last recorded words of Jesus from the New Testament Gospels. This is a very special time of the year for Christians as we reflect on the meaning of Jesus' suffering, death and resurrection.

The church will be open during the day this week until Saturday. The Geraldine community is invited to take some time to come in and reflect on Jesus' death.

Local artist Beth Heatlie will be painting on some aspect of the Easter Experience. She will be in the church mid-morning each day this week.

On Good Friday the community is invited to join a Combined Churches "Walk of Witness" as we walk behind the cross around Geraldine. This will start at the Church of the Immaculate Conception (corner of Hislop/Peel St) at 10am and will finish at St Andrew's Church on Cox Street with hot cross buns and coffee.

Netball grants up for grabs

It's almost time for Geraldine's keen netballers to be divided into teams and appointed their positions, with the 2015 season in sight. Geraldine players and teams at all levels are being asked to come forward and apply for support as part of the ANZ Netball Grant Scheme.

The programme is offering $100,000 worth of grants for everything from new gear, uniforms and coaching support to repairs to hoops and courts, or even a training session with the ANZ Championship pros. School teams, social teams, individual players and fans are all eligible to apply. www.anzcourtside.co.nz

Pink Ribbon Breakfast

"Research is key to improving Kiwi women's survival," said Lorraine Downes, who is an NZBCF ambassador and former Miss Universe. Her mother was diagnosed with breast cancer in 2012 and underwent successful treatment for the disease. "The advances that saved my mum started with research projects like the ones the NZBCF is funding today. By hosting a Pink Ribbon Breakfast, you'll help save more women down the track."

Proceeds from this year's Pink Ribbon Breakfasts will go towards breast cancer research. www.pinkribbonbreakfast.co.nz

Cricket back at "the sacred acre"

It was an emotional moment for Graham Ellery when his son Liam Simpson strode out to open the batting for South Canterbury schoolboys representative cricket team on Sunday at the Geraldine domain.

Graham was a member of the Geraldine seniors which claimed the ultimate prize in South Canterbury cricket, the Tweedy Cup, three times during the eighties.

"The memories of Geraldine's proud cricketing heritage came flooding back," said Graham. "When, as a kid, I used to watch extremely strong senior teams with a list as long as your arm of local players who would crush and humiliate any opposition that could be lined up from local clubs today. The unfortunate thing with the evolution process, is that Geraldine no longer has a senior side, which to this day, fills the heart with blood. I often drive past the Geraldine domain, known with deep affection as 'the sacred acre', and to see it vacant during the summer, along with the beautiful pavilion, is shattering.

"I know times have changed, and youth have many options, but to move forward with any sporting code parents must involve themselves with providing positive structures to allow kids to follow their dreams. Cricket is no different. In my school days, the late Cuth Warburton gave many hours per week after his teaching day, to tutor anybody who wanted to pull on the whites. Geraldine High School was the direct feeder link that provided strong competition for a place in any team through the club grades. Along with this the Geraldine Cricket Club had vigorous hard working committees.

"I do fondly remember having to play in a trial match on the oval to get selected for our senior team."

Graham said that the resurgence of Geraldine cricket may have started last weekend. The South Canterbury team included four Geraldine players: Logan Sowden, Scott

Robinson, George Powell and Calab Orange.

Graham pointed to the fact that the rep team's selector/coach Hayden Powell is teaching at Geraldine High School.

"Let's all hope this bodes well in the future for Geraldine cricket," said Graham. "Although my boy, Liam, plays club cricket for Celtic, he has red and black running through his veins. If Geraldine can re-emerge to senior level in the future, then who knows. Watch this space."

For the record, South Canterbury made 129 off their allotted 35 overs with Liam being retired on 20no. Christchurch Metro knocked off the runs with three overs to spare.

FINANCIAL SUPPORT FOR LOCAL ARTS APPLICATIONS CLOSE 15 MAY FOR PROJECTS STARTING AFTER 5 JUNE 2015

The Creative Communities Scheme supports and encourages local communities to create and present diverse opportunities for accessing and participating in arts activities within the Timaru District.

Under the scheme, ‘the arts’ are broadly defined as ‘all forms of creative and interpretative expression’. This includes opportunities for creative participation in dance, performance, visual arts, music, arts education, toi Maori, literary workshops, digital storytelling, and more.

Application forms: Geraldine, Temuka and Timaru Council offices

<http://www.timaru.govt.nz/services/community-and-culture/community-funding/creative-communities>

Enquiries to Jenny Ensor, telephone 03 687 7254.

Community and security that makes financial sense, too.

In a world where prices keep going up, McKenzie Lifestyle Village's weekly fee is guaranteed to stay fixed. That's your rates, insurance, building maintenance, gardening, lawn-mowing and community facilities all covered by a fee fixed for the term of your occupancy. Good insulation and great supplier deals mean power bills are cheaper, too, and it's even possible to participate in the capital gain when you leave.

If this makes sense, call David Connolly now on 03 693 8340.
